Fall 2019 Honors Colloquium

Melody Day, Marketing major, English minor presented her thesis project at the Honors Program’s “Fall 2019 Honors Colloquium” held on December 9, 2019.

Her thesis was “Psychographic Persona Development in The Picture of Dorian Gray” and her faculty advisor was Sr. Mary Hotz.

“When interviewed about his Victorian Gothic masterpiece, The Picture of Dorian Gray, Oscar Wilde once observed that ‘Basil Hallward is what I think I am: Lord Henry is what the world thinks of me: Dorian is what I would like to be—in other ages, perhaps’” (Oscar Wilde). These three characters represent widely different types of people; in light of Wilde’s words, then, what does it truly mean to be Basil, Lord Henry, or Dorian Gray? In other words, what interests, opinions, and values held by these characters determine how each of them differ from one another?

In my cross-discipline thesis, I attempt to answer these questions through applying the marketing concept of persona development to the novel, and in doing so, test whether strategic marketing concepts can practically be applied to literary contexts.”

Congrats, Melody, on your presentation!

TLC Integration Showcase

The TLC (Transfer Learning Community) Integration Showcase was held on December 3, 2019, in the UC Forums. Prof. Stacie Vos’s English 226-70 course “Lives of Good Women” participated and created a small bookshop with scribal and critical editions of texts read in the course. The idea here was to make medieval book culture more accessible to students today.

ENGL/THEA 367: London Plays in Production

DR. CYNTHIA CAYWOOD & DR. DAVID HAY

CORE: ENGL 307 // Literary Inquiry & Advanced Integration, THEA 367 // Artistic Inquiry & Advanced Integration

THE COURSE

ENGL/THEA 367 is an interdisciplinary course taught in London by Dr. Cynthia Caywood (English) and Dr. David Hay (Theatre). It will introduce students to the wide diversity of London theatre in what is arguably the theatre capital of the English-speaking world. Students will read a variety of scripts and see a range of productions in an assortment of venues. In addition, students will participate in field trips designed to provide background, history and context for their theatre experience. Class discussions, two essays, field trips, the integrative core project and the final exam will underscore the interdisciplinary and integrative focus of our study.

PROGRAM INFORMATION

- Dates: July 7th - 26th 2020
- Online applications due February 19th, 2020
- Inquiries should be directed to Dr. Cynthia Caywood & Dr. David Hay (ccaywood@sandiego.edu & dhay@sandiego.edu)

Deborah Sundmacher Nominated for 2019 Woman of Impact Award

We congratulate Deborah Sundmacher, faculty, who was a nominee for the 2019 Woman of Impact Award. She was recognized at the annual Women of Impact Luncheon and Awards Ceremony hosted by the Women’s Commons on Thursday, November 21, 2019.

A Woman of Impact is one who lives principles of social justice. Through her work, activities, and relationships she supports others in finding voice, developing skills for transformation and understanding who they are called to be. Her community is not merely a place in which she exists; it is a place she actively improves.

In the words of Deborah’s nominator(s), “I am writing to nominate Deborah Sundmacher for USD’s Woman of Impact award. Deborah is the beloved director of the Writing Center, and she teaches courses in the English Department that qualify for the Women’s and Gender Studies minor. Deborah has created an environment in the Writing Center that challenges students to be empowered by writing and that offers students a safe space for collaborative intellectual growth. In fact, multiple students have told me that they did not find a sense of community at USD until they began working at the Writing Center. This feeling of safety, community, and appreciation that students tap into at the Writing Center is owing to Deborah’s active agenda to build a program that values and enacts these empathetic principles. In Deborah’s classes, especially “Sex, Power, and Politics,” she promotes a greater understanding of gender dynamics as they inform behavior and systems of power. In the classroom, she deconstructs systems of oppression in order to empower students to recognize, articulate, and dismantle them. She is developing a course now that focuses on activist women, and she consistently leans on progressive women in international contexts as exemplars for her students. Just as she challenges students to think critically about their writing, her courses model these methods and inspire students to reconsider the behaviors around them, in their lives and in their greater world.”

All nominees and their nominators were invited to attend the Women of Impact Luncheon and were honored as strong women exhibiting leadership and positively influencing the USD community. We congratulate Deborah on her nomination and thank her for the many contributions she has made to the University of San Diego community!
