Horses in American Indian Culture

Thurs, October 2 – Wed, May 20, in the David W. May American Indian Gallery, Room 214A, Serra Hall. Gallery hours: Tues-Thurs, 1-4pm.

The Horses in American Indian Culture exhibit is student-produced and traces the significance of the bonds that developed between Indians of the Southwest and the horse, their “four-legged brother.” The Spanish introduction of the horse into the area during the 1700s changed many aspects of Indian culture such as travel, warfare and hunting. The exhibit includes artifacts made of equine materials, items used in daily interactions with the horse, and objects demonstrating the horse’s profound role in warfare, spirituality, and contemporary American Indian art, as well as other cultural phenomena. For information, please visit www.sandiego.edu/galleries or call (619) 260-7516.

Curious Beasts of the British Museum: Animal Prints from Dürer to Goya

The British Museum

and comprise a fascinating record of early modern imagi-

Thurs, Oct 2, – Fri, Dec 19, in Founders’ Robert and Karen Hoehn Family Galleries. Gallery hours: Tues–Sun, 12–5pm; Thurs 12–6pm. Opening Reception: Thurs, Oct 2, 5pm.

The first of three planned collaborations between USD’s University Galleries and the British Museum, Curious Beasts: Animal Prints from Dürer to Goya explores our enduring curiosity about the animal world through the beautiful and bizarre imagery found in prints from the British Museum’s unparalleled collection. Curious Beasts features 86 rare woodcuts, engravings, etchings, mezzotints and lithographs from the 15th to the early 19th centuries by the best known artists of these eras, including singular works such as Albrecht Dürer’s The Rhinoceros (1515) and George Stubbs’s A Tyger (1788), alongside other lesser known and seldom seen treasures. Because these works were typically small-scale, easily transported and comparatively affordable, the prints were also accessible to many levels of society nation and creativity.

No other San Diego arts institution has ever collaborated with the British Museum at this level. At the opening reception on Thursday, October 2, Hugo Chapman, Keeper of Prints at the British Museum will speak about Curious Beasts as well as the legendary holdings of his institution.

For information, please visit www.sandiego.edu/galleries or call (619) 260-7516.

USD Just Read! Stuffed & Starved by Raj Patel

USD Just Read! Encourages literacy and deep dialogue on social themes presented through outstanding literature. The program promotes active learning and reading not only within the USD community, but within the San Diego community at large. During the 2014-2015 academic year, the book selection is Stuffed and Starved, written by Raj Patel. Various program are being offered on campus this fall, including a speaking engagement by the author, book discussions, a faculty led expert panel discussion, and related films. A limited supply of books are available for check-out from the Center for Education Excellence (CEE) and Human Resources.

Tues, Oct 14, 12:30-2:00pm (location TBA): Alcala Park Readers Book Discussion.

Please RSVP at: www.sandiego.edu/cee/events/registration.php.

"Here's a book that takes Jamie's Dinners, Supersize Me, mangoes in the Arctic Circle and McFatties, and puts them in a blender to make an intoxicating cocktail. Stuffed and Starved takes us into the supermarket aisles and reveals the stories behind the products in our trolleys, some of them very dark indeed.

Raj Patel's definitive account of the global food system ranges across GM crops, history and export issues, rising levels of obesity and other health crises. It's a mad world where we encounter Coca Cola

"cosmeceuticals" that promise to improve complexion and breast size, where Nestli owns Jenny Craig – and Unilever, home of Ben and Jerry's ice-cream, owns Slimfast. It is also a positive story of resistance in the paddy fields of India, the maize ejidos of Mexico and the Italian Slow Food kitchens, to name but a few." (text courtesy of Penguin)

The Jacques Maritain Prize for Nonfiction

Dappled Things is introducing this year the Jacques Maritain Prize for Nonfiction. Maritain was an influential 20th century Thomist philosopher and Catholic convert whose work covered a wide range of topics, including metaphysics and epistemology, ethics and politics, and—significantly for us—literature and art. His book Art and Scholasticism has been a major influence in Dappled Things' own approach to aesthetics. Prize Amounts: 1st place: $500; 2nd place: $300; & 3rd place: $200. Submission deadline is by June 2015. More information, including themes, can be found at: <http://dappledthings.org/the-j-f-powers-prize-for-fiction/>.

Sexual Assault Training and Awareness

Thurs, Sept 25, 12:15-2:15pm in UC Forum. A great deal of attention has been recently given to the issue of sexual assault in college campuses across the nation. To continue with our efforts to prevent and appropriately respond to these types of incidents, USD is offering a faculty training on how to respond to student disclosures of sexual assault, intimate partner violence & stalking. You may have had, at some point, students in your classes who were affected by gender and/or sexual violence. Knowing how best to support them is important in helping them be successful in their education and in their healing process. Topics covered:

- University of San Diego protocol for responding to sexual violence
- Tips on effectively responding to disclosures
- Resources available on campus and in the community
- What you can do as faculty to help promote a healthy community, free of sexual and gender violence to respond to student disclosures of sexual assault, intimate partner violence and stalking. Co-sponsored by Student Wellness. Please RSVP: www.sandiego.edu/cee/events/registration.php.

Dissolving Borders: Where Water and Boundaries Collide

The exhibition, Dissolving Borders: Where Water and Boundaries Collide, showcases the thesis work of Samantha O'Brien '14. Focusing on the ecology of the San Diego-Tijuana border, Dissolving Borders proposes to restore the Tijuana estuary's southern wetlands and to gain public awareness of the habitat. Comprised of a series of architectural interventions located throughout the rehabilitated estuary, this project is about visibility, exploring the way architecture can both obscure and expose the world around us, as well as create social and ecological awareness.

Located in the Visual Arts Center, Sacred Heart Hall, Room 102, the exhibition runs Monday, September 29 – Friday, October 3. Gallery Hours: 9:00am - 5:00pm.
