3 Mandamus Poecisions reviewable and proper mode of review

Trial court's denial of physician's petition for writ of mandate challenging Medical Board's decision that rejected his petition for penalty relief seeking early termination of probationary restrictions on his medical license was reviewable only by petition for writ of mandate, not by appeal, since the Board's decision was a decision "restricting a license," even if the trial court did not comply with the expedited hearing mandate for reviewing such decisions, where the Board's decision reaffirmed that probation was still warranted. Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 2221(b), 2307, 2337.

4 Health PReinstatement

The Government Code provision stating that a person whose license has been revoked or suspended may under certain conditions petition the licensing agency for reinstatement or reduction of penalty did not apply to physician's petition for penalty relief seeking early termination of probationary restrictions on his medical license, since the petition was within the exception for statutes containing "different provisions for reinstatement or reduction of penalty." Cal. Gov't Code § 11522; Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 2221(b), 2307.

5 Health 🗽 Review

The statute providing that superior court review of a decision "revoking, suspending, or restricting" a medical license shall take preference over all other civil actions applies to trial court review of any disciplinary decision by the Medical Board that affects the status of the physician's license to practice. Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code § 2337.

6 Mandamus Pocisions reviewable and proper mode of review

Physician failed to establish sufficient justification for his error in filing an appeal rather than a writ petition to challenge trial court's denial of his petition for writ of mandate challenging Medical Board's decision that rejected his petition for penalty relief seeking early termination of probationary restrictions on his medical license, and thus the Court of Appeal would not treat physician's appellate brief as a petition for an extraordinary writ, even though the Medical Board and the dissenting justice in the Court of Appeal also misread the governing statutes to authorize appeals, where the statute requiring a petition for an extraordinary writ was unambiguous. Cal. Gov't Code § 11522; Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 2221(b), 2307, 2337.

Wyeth loses bid to break up California class over HRT drugs

10/8/2015 | REUTERS LEGAL

U.S. District Judge John Houston in San Diego said that Wyeth had failed to convince him that the class in the long-running consumer-fraud lawsuit did not share enough common issues, nor that it would be too difficult to ascertain who qualified to join the class.

when a specific statute provides otherwise. 24 Part of the APA, Government Code section 11501 provides: "(a) This chapter applies to any agency as determined by the statute relating to that agency." Pusiness and Professions Code [233] section 2230, subdivision (a), part of the Medical Practice Act (APA) (Bus. & Prof. Code, § 2000 et seq.) recognizes the preeminence of the APA in the following text: "All proceedings against a licensee for unprofessional conduct, or against an applicant for licensure for unprofessional conduct or cause, shall be conducted in accordance with the [APA] (Chapter 5 (commencing with Section 11500) of Part 1 of Division 3 of Title 2 of the Government Code) except as provided in this chapter. ..." (Accord, Bus. & Prof. Code, § 2335, subd. (c) [proposed decisions of the Board are to be acted upon "in accordance with Section 11517 of [the APA]" with exceptions not relevant to this proceeding]; Astle et al., Cal. Administrative Hearing Practice (Cont.Ed.Bar 2d ed. 2014) Postdecision Administrative Proceedings, § 9.3 (rev. 10/13); 9 Witkin, Cal. Procedure (5th ed. 2008) Administrative Proceedings, § 119, p. 1245.)

The questions to be resolved on this appeal include whether part of the APA, Government Code sections 11522 and 11523, together with Code of Civil Procedure section 1094.5, on the one hand, or part of the MPA, Business and Professions Code section 2337, on the other, determine the method for review of the trial court's judgment in this case. 3

The terms of part of the APA, Government Code section 11522 expressly apply to the petition filed by Sela, while the text of part of the MPA, Business and Professions Code section 2337 does not. As part of the APA, Government Code section 11522 is applicable, then pursuant to part of the APA, Government Code section 11523 and Code of Civil Procedure section 1094.5, appellate review of the trial court's judgment on Sela's petition for writ of mandate is by direct appeal. (See Landau v. Superior Court (1998) 81 Cal.App.4th 191, 201 [97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 657] (Landau) [noting that appellate review of judgments entered after trial on petitions for writs of mandamus under Code Civ. Proc., § 1094.5 is "traditional[ly]" by means of appeal; see id., at p. 198, fn. 2].)

These conclusions are consistent with part of the APA, Government Code section 11501 4 and with part of the MPA, Business and Professions Code section 2230, subdivision (a). The majority reasons that part of the MPA, Business and Professions Code section 2337 must be construed to apply the same expedited procedure to our review of denials of changes in terms of probation as the Legislature clearly intended to apply to "decision[s] revoking, suspending or, restricting a license" (italics added) under part of the MPA, Business and Professions Code section 2337. For the following reasons, I conclude that review of such a denial is by direct appeal. First, the text of part of the MPA, Government Code section 2337 does not include any express reference to petitions to modify probationary terms of a decision of the Board: While it carefully specifies those circumstances to which it applies, nowhere in the text of this section is there any reference to expedited review of denials of petitions to modify the terms of probation.

Second, extending the scope of part of the MPA, Business and Professions Code section 2337 to include appellate review of petitions for changes in probationary terms requires that we ignore the express language of part of the APA, Government Code section 11522 as well as that of section 2337. Section 11522 expressly applies to any licensee "whose license has been revoked or suspended ..." while part of the MPA, Business and Professions Code section 2337 expressly applies to a carefully defined and distinctive set of circumstances.

Third, the construction suggested by the majority undervalues the statutorily prescribed interrelationship between the APA and the MPA set out in part of the APA, Government Code section 11501, subdivision (a) and part of the MPA, Business and Professions Code section 2230, subdivision (a), both of which require that provisions of the APA apply when the MPA does not. Further, part of the MPA, Business and Professions Code, section 2307 establishes a procedure for a licensee to seek modification of either a penalty or probation through a series of statutes which culminates with the requirement that compliance be had with the APA. Once the determination is made under section 2307, subdivision (c), that determination is "acted upon in accordance with Section 2335." (Bus. & Prof. Code, § 2307, subd. (d).)

The proposed rule would force scores of therapists to hire a veterinarian to supervise them.

My dog needs a rubdown — what's the problem? California Veterinary Medical Board says animal massage lacks oversight By Sheila Pell, Oct. 3, 2015

Wellness care for pets is thriving in San Diego. There are fitness trainers, massage therapists, and more. For many animal owners, it's a tool to prevent illness. To the California Veterinary Medical Board, it's risky business.

On October 20–21, the board will hold a meeting to discuss plans to regulate the services. Such businesses lack oversight, they say, which puts pets at risk of injury or death. The board proposes that only veterinarians, or physical therapists and registered vet techs under a vet's supervision, be allowed to perform animal rehabilitation.

Critics say the board's definition of rehab goes too far. It affects businesses that work with pets on the mend but also covers practices aimed at preventing disease or injury. Along with esoteric modes like biofeedback technology, it includes therapeutic massage and prescribed exercise.

"It affects a lot of people, and in the end, the animals," says Ann Montalto, a registered nurse with years of canine massage practice in San Diego. She now works for a vet, but despite having two canine-massage training certificates, she is not a registered vet tech.
